

Agilent E6720A Lab Application Annual Contract

Key Features

- Provides all releases of the lab application during the term of the contract for no additional charge (including upgrades to a new product number)¹
- Provides early access to pre-released features (subscription releases) that are only available with the contract
- Provides a permanent license for the next product revision of the lab application (e.g. E6703E + Annual Contract entitles you to a permanent license for the E6703F. Because the license is permanent, you get all future releases for that product (e.g. E6703F) even after your Annual Contract expires
- Individualized notification when a new release is available for your lab application

Annual Contracts save time and ensure you have access to the latest versions of Agilent's lab applications

With rapidly evolving standards and the continuing stream of new product features, the E6720A offers an edge for getting reliable products to market quickly.

Guarantee you have the latest Agilent lab applications and functionality. With each firmware release, the E6720A provides timely delivery and individualized notification of new application functionality and enhancements. Each release notice includes instructions on how to obtain a description of the new functionality and features, the release date, and details on how to download the latest revision and any available licenses.

You also get early access to subscription releases that are only available to Annual Contract customers. Subscription releases provide early access to partially qualified pre-release features, giving you a leading edge on getting your new device to market. Check the E6720A website for the latest features.

The E6720A delivers the most up-to-date releases, giving you the tools you need to quickly isolate and resolve product faults and incompatibility issues, and prevent manufacturing delays.

Save time and money. Order Agilent's E6720A Annual Contract.

¹ Hardware upgrades may be required in a few instances. Hardware upgrades are not included in the Annual Contract product
